- Only 2.5% of the voters have submitted their photographs so far
- Targeted number of voters is 15.80 lakh
- Around 28 voter help centers have been opened in 21 constituencies to assist voters in submitting their photographs

Pune: The district administration's drive to include photographs of voters in the voters' list by May 31 is turning out to be a difficult task. Of the total target of 15.80 lakh, so far only 40,000 (2.5%) of the voters have submitted their photographs to the administration.

The initiative to collect photographs began on April 1 under a special drive in all 21 assembly constituencies in Pune, Pimpri Chinchwad and rural parts of the district. However, in its first month, the drive received poor response, as very few voters turned up to submit their photographs. The administration is now facing an ambitious target of collecting around 15.40 lakh photographs before the June 1 deadline.

The administration plans to publish a photograph of every voter in the voters' list against his/her name. The inclusion of photographs will help in avoiding chances of bogus voting and duplication of names. Besides, the latest photographs of the voters will help the administration to generate voter ID card which is a valid proof while exercising their voting rights.

"Low response of the vot-ers to the drive has posed a big challenge to the administration," said Vikas Deshmukh district collector. He added that despite issuing repeated appeals to the public through the media and advertisements, the drive got low response.

Deshmukh said that the administration is now working on various options to increase the number of submissions to meet 100% target. He also appealed to the voters to submit their photos and get the voter ID cards.

An official from district election branch said, "Photographs of more than 15.00 lakh voters are yet to be uploaded in the voters' list to meet the target of 100% inclusion of photos. As many as 28 voter help centers have been started in 21 constituencies, of which 16 are in Pune and Pimpri Chinchwad to assist the voters. The block level officers (BLO) have been asked to go to the residences of those voters who have not submitted the photos yet."

The official added that though the help centres have been functioning since the last month, the number of voters turning up at these centres are less. "Voters might not be acquainted with the place, so we have decided to rope in ration shops and gas agencies to collect the photographs. We also plan to involve the chairmen and secretaries of housing societies to collect the photographs and submit them to the authorities," he added.

The official said that to increase the number of submission in the city, areas like Hadapsar, Vadgaonsheri, Shivajinagar, Khadakwasla, Kothrud and Parvati have been allotted two voter help centres each. While the remaining constituencies in the Pimpri Chinchwad and rural parts of the district have been allotted one centre each. These centres are also given machines to take on-the-spot photographs. If a voter does not have latest photograph, he/she can visit the centre and get their photograph clicked, he added.

The official further said that the latest voters list has been made available at the office of the electoral registration officer in each constituency.

According to district election branch, at present, around 78% voters in the district have received voter ID cards. There are 66.89 lakh registered voters.

Pune: The deadline to submit photographs to be uploaded in the voters' list is close, but as many as 12.84 lakh eligible voters in the city and rural parts have yet to send their photographs.

Ahead of the Lok Sabha election in 2014, the district administration is planning to upload photographs of all individuals in the voters' list. In the city, about 24% voters have not submitted their photographs. A special drive that started on April 1 will go on till June 30.

"The response to the drive has remained poor, so far. Though about 98,000 voters have submitted their photographs in the last two months, as many as 12.84 lakh are yet to respond. The drive is being conducted in 21 assembly constituencies in the city and rural parts," said an official from district election branch.

The administration has already set up 28 voter help centres (VHC). Every constituency has at least one centre while six constituencies in the city – Hadapsar, Vadgaonsheri, Shivajinagar, Khadakwasla, Kothrud and Parvati – have two. Every centre is provided with photo-clicking machines. A voter can walk into a centre and get photographed. A voter can also submit a photograph to the block-level officer. The administration has also asked the officers to visit houses to collect the photographs.

Voters can visit the website, pune.nic.in, to check the list of voters who are yet to submit their photographs, said an official, adding that the latest voters' list is also available at the office of the electoral registration officer in each constituency.

The poor turnout at VHCs, officials in the election branch said, was because of the summer vacation. The administration has urged the chairmen and secretaries of housing societies to collect the photographs of residents and submit them to the authorities.

There are about 66.89 lakh registered voters. The election branch has said that voters will receive voter ID cards later in the year.

Meanwhile, the election branch has also undertaken a drive to delete names of voters who have died, shifted or had their names appearing more than once. As many as 1.18 lakh names have been deleted, so far.

The list of voters is available at www.pune.nic.in. Voters can approach the election branch office at the old building of zilla parishad near Sassoon general hospital for more information.

Revised list of polling stations out today

The district election branch is in the process of revising demarcations of some polling stations in the city and rural parts. The administration will publish details of revised list of polling stations on Monday. It will be open to suggestions and objections from the public. Revisions are being made owing to change in the population of voters over the years in every constituency and under every polling station. Revisions in the polling stations are being suggested as per the norms stated by the state election commission, an official said.

Pune: The district administration has announced an extension of at least a month for citizens to submit their photographs for the voters' list in the city and rural areas.

The collection drive, underway in all 21 assembly constituencies in the city and rural parts of Pune district, aims at 100% inclusion of photographs of voters in the voters' list. However, the response of voters has been low as only about 1.80 lakh voters out of a list of 15.80 lakh have submitted their photos so far.

"Voters will get additional time to submit photos. They will be issued a voter identity card (voter ID) from the state election commission and their photograph will be updated in the voters' list. The administration has commenced 28 help centres in each constituency to receive the photos. The block level officers have been asked to visit residences of voters to collect photographs," Apoorva Wankhede, head of the district administration's election branch department, said.

Wankhede said voters can visit the website http://pune.gov.in/punecollectorate to get more details regarding voters' list of every assembly constituency, details of list of block level officers and polling stations. The voters can download the forms for inclusion of photos from the website.

The election branch is also updating the voters' list by deleting names of voters who are no longer eligible. The list includes names of deceased, or voters who have shifted or those whose names have been entered more than once. The election branch is scrutinizing the list to identify non eligible voters. Notices have been issued in cases where names have been repeated.

"As many as 8 lakh names have been deleted from the voters' list of 21 assembly constituencies so far. All these names were of deceased persons, shifted or repeated names. We are expecting deletion of more names", Wankhede said.

There was a demand from political parties to update the voters' list to help find the exact number of voters in the city.

Number-wise

- 15.80 lakh voters in Pune and rural parts still to update photos
- 28 help centres to collect photos started by district administration
- 450 centres have been set up across the state
- 68 lakh voters in the district
- 78% voters in 21 assembly constituencies received voter ID cards so far

Pune: The district administration's ongoing drive to update photos of voters in the voters' list has so far received low response in the city and rural parts. According to the district administration, only 7,000 voters in 21 assembly constituencies updated their photos in the first 15 days of the drive which began on April 1.

The district administration has now planned to rope in fair price ration shops and LPG agencies to collect photos from the voters. Officials said that the move would help the voters to submit their photos within their areas and they will not have to travel to the help centres set up in every constituency.

District collector Vikas Deshmukh said, "Though the drive to collect photos will continue till May end, I am not happy with the response received from voters in the first 15 days. We want to update the voters' list with correct photo of every voter. The administration has established special centres to collect/click photos of all those voters who have still not updated their photos".

"Updating of photos will help the administration identify bogus and duplicate names, if any," said Deshmukh. The administration has said that those who submit their photos will also receive voter ID card after the drive.

As per the latest data, photos of about 15.80 lakh voters in 21 constituencies were not updated in the voters' list. There are about 68 lakh voters in the district and the administration wants 100% inclusion of photos in the voters' list.

The administration has started 28 centres in the district of which 16 are in Pune and Pimpri Chinchwad. Every centre has been allotted a camera to click on-the-spot photos. Around 78% voters in 21 assembly constituencies have received voter ID cards so far. Altogether 450 help centres have been set up across the state.
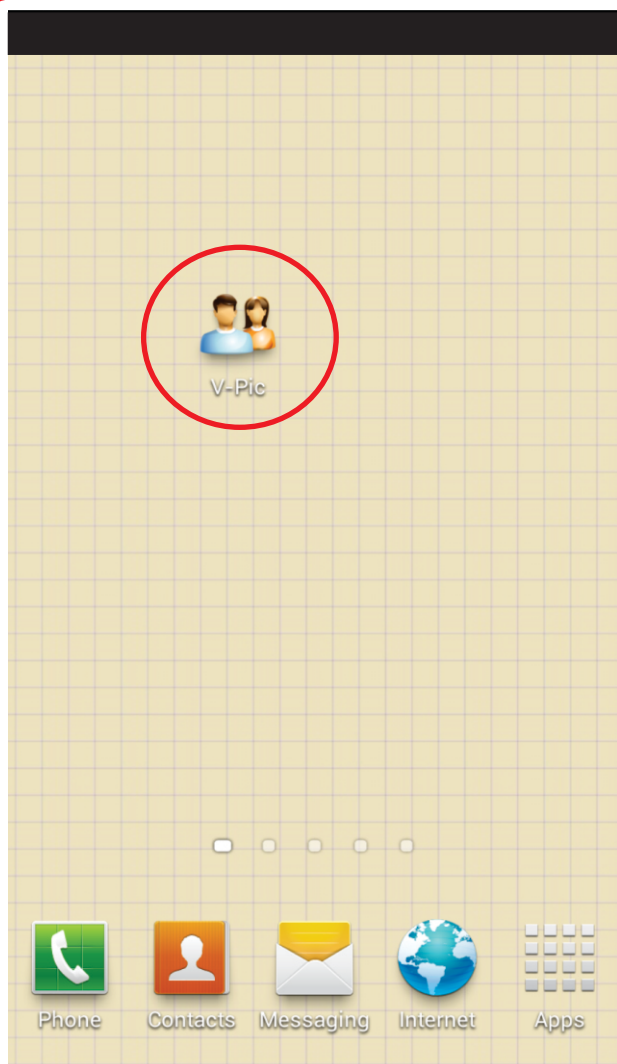

An official from the district election branch said that forms will be available at ration shops and LPG agencies. Besides, steps are being taken to rope in social organizations to increase inclusion of photos. The official added that the block level officers will undertake home-to-home visits to collect photos in the next couple of weeks.

The administration has said that the latest voters' list is available at the office of the electoral registration officer and also at www.pune.nic.in.
